

A TOWNHOUSE GROWS IN BROOKLYN

For the inaugural Brooklyn Heights Designer Showhouse—presented by NYC&G to benefit the Brooklyn Heights Association, which was instrumental in establishing the neighborhood as New York City's first landmarked historic district—16 design firms unleashed their talents on all 7,000 square feet of a charming 19th-century brownstone. Turn the page to see the stunning results.

Brownstone Beauty

For the façade and entry, Brooklyn Heights Gardens went with a white and green plant palette in an array of planters and window boxes from Penoyer Newman. See Resources.
